

ABSTRACT

An input system for an electronic device comprises a plurality of two digit numeric codes representing characters or character strings. The code for a character string comprises a combination of the first digits from its component characters. Information is input into the electronic device by pressing combinations of keys corresponding to two digit codes on an input interface.

10

1000 SHEETS - 8 1/2" X 11"